How to Become a Military Officer in the Estonian Armed Forces:

The initial education and training of the officers of the Estonian Army, Navy and Air Force is primarily the role of the joint National Defence College. Even though the institution is joint, the education, and the vocational training upper than the basic military training, are not joint. Army, Navy and Air Force cadets follow different and specialised commissioning curricula. As a common point, however, every cadet must complete his or her professional higher education (1st level of higher education, equivalent to bachelor level) studies at the Defence College in order to be commissioned as an officer. The programme of these studies contains academic and vocational components that are indistinctively accredited as a single professional military curriculum. The Defence College also offers the opportunity to the Army officers to follow a two-year master programme early in their career (minimum 3 years of experience), as an intermediate curriculum.

The initial vocational training, until the application level, is the product of the collaboration between the Defence College and the operational units themselves. It must be reminded, to this regard, that the compulsory conscript service can also be seen as an introductory military basic training before the beginning of the commissioning curriculum.

Estonia and the National Defence College are progressively implementing an active policy and promotion in favour of the mobility from and to Estonia of European cadets and instructors. The College has implemented all necessary instruments for this development, including the Erasmus arrangements, and it regularly sends students to the common modules organised in the framework of the Initiative for the exchange of young officers.

Before and beyond basic education

The future Navy officers are recruited among the young nationals who are graduated from secondary education and who have completed their military service. In addition, they must successfully pass several entrance tests.

In the course of their career, the Estonian officers will receive additional education and training at an advanced level at the Baltic Defence College or in military colleges or schools abroad for Senior Staff Officers or High Command courses (ranks between Captain to Admiral).
