How to Become a Military Officer in the Luxembourg Armed Forces:

Luxemburg does not have on its national territory the capacities for an indigenous system for the basic education and training of its military officers.

Therefore, Luxemburg relies on the collaboration with France and Belgium for their education and training. The Luxembourg candidates must follow the same education and training processes than their Belgian or French counterparts, depending on the Member State they are sent to.

Even though both Belgium and France require from their military students to obtain a master degree and have fully integrated the acquis of the Higher Education Area in their military education, the organisation of the studies is different. There are, therefore, not only one, but two basic education and training systems for the Luxembourg officers.
