COURSE CORE CURRICULUM

- ECONOMY

- FRENCH CIVILISATION

This course, delivered entirely in French is designed to provide foreign cadets with an understanding of French and French speaking culture, through geography, history, political institutions and cultural notions. Students will also be asked to work on a presentation in French on a topic of their choosing related to French culture or institutions.

One topic out of the following three:

1/ DEFENSE ISSUES

- LAW AND VIOLENCE REGULATION : COMPARATIVE APPROACHES

It is a complementary approach to the three components of legal discipline (history of law, private law and public law) which aims to shed light on the constraints imposed by law from an operational perspective: violence: historical and philosophical approaches, the military in the face of the law, regulation of the use of force in the international order: the hopes of the 20th century towards the challenges of the 21st century.

- DEFENSE ISSUES AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS IN EUROPE BETWEEN 1945 AND 1992

This module aims to highlight the link between the post-war and cold war political crises, on the one hand, and the relations between European and extra-European powers. It must also help understand the construction of a European defense policy within the framework of transatlantic cooperation.

- SOCIOLOGY OF COMMAND AND LEADERSHIP

The objective of this course is to explore the notions of Command and Leadership using an analytical approach through case studies. Human Factor and Decision-making will also be discussed to bring out how to optimize the reliability of a decision and how to avoid the cognitive biases that affect every individual, as well as the collective logics.

2/ INTERNATIONAL AND EUROPEAN DEFENSE ISSUES

- USA FOREIGN POLICY ISSUES

This course aims to familiarize the officer cadets with international relations English literature as well as to understand the actors and the stakes of the foreign policy of the United States.

- EUROPEAN SECURITY ISSUES

This course examines the E.U. policy of security and defence, European defence law actors and E.U. military missions.

- GEOPOLITICS EMERGING COUNTRIES: WHAT CHALLENGES?

This course aims to deepen a theme born in the 1980s, in the financial sphere. At the time, we discovered new markets outside Europe, North America and Japan. The so-called emerging countries are characterized by their diversified economies and the development of their stock exchanges.

- SOCIOLOGY : MAJOR CHALLENGES OF CONTEMPORARY SOCIETIES

This course provides officer cadets with an introduction to the analysis of social issues posed by transformations in French society. The main topics covered are: the individual, social institutions and modernity, family and demography, the economy and the world of work, poverty, exclusion and integration, the reconstruction of beliefs. The course focuses for 75% on the challenges of developed societies, in particular France, and for 25% on the other countries of the European space. It offers student officers to develop a capacity for critical analysis of social issues in order to be able to situate themselves in society by developing their thinking. The pedagogy is based on different supports: the lecture, the documentary, texts to be discussed.

3/ SOLDIERS, STATES AND SOCIETIES

- CONTEMPORARY CONFLICT ANALYSIS

This course focuses on describing and analyzing the major contemporary developments in conflict in the world, and reflects on their consequences for the future engagements of our armies. Based on General Ruppert Smith's observations, several new factors must now be taken into account, the courses will study these major trends by alternating general reflections and local examples.

- LAW / SOCIETY AND GLOBALIZATION

This course deals with the consequences of globalization on French society and aims to strengthen the knowledge of political concepts and the critical intelligence of officer cadets.

- FRENCH OFFICERS HISTORY 18TH – 20TH CENTURY

This module will allow students to better understand the behavior of French officers from the end of the 18th century to the Algerian War. It will address the concepts of honor, military obedience and their relationship to recruitment and combat engagement to determine how officers are intellectually prepared to become a major player in the Nation.

- MEDIA HISTORY

The purpose of this course is to introduce non-specialist EOs to the functioning of the media and to the challenges brought by the current media revolution (web 2.0, social networks, etc.) To understand these issues, the course will endeavor to retrace the history of the media in the history of publication in the broad sense (from the invention of the printing press to the contemporary era).

MAJORS

1/ ECONOMICS MANAGEMENT

- ECONOMIC INTELLIGENCE

This course deals with the analysis of the mechanisms of contemporary competition (digital and globalized economy): competition on the market and outside the market, operations of influence, production and competition of standards, economic war.

- FINANCIAL ANALYSIS OF ORGANIZATIONS

Financial analysis refers to the methodical assessment of the financial situation of a company, a person or a project. The purpose of this analysis is to provide, from quantified information of various origins, a synthetic vision which brings out the reality of the situation and which must help the manager, the investor and the lender in their decision-making.

The student should be able to carry out an analysis of the financial situation of an organization, an area which is very important in the current context.

This module is also designed as a preparation for the "Management simulation" module of S4.

2/ MILITARY HISTORY

- DESERT WARFARE

The purpose of this module is to study the specifics of combat in a desert environment: absence of a front, prioritization of maneuver, surprise and action in depth while addressing operational, logistical and tactical constraints. This module favors a crossed approach mixing the history of operations, international relations and geography over a period ranging from the Egyptian campaign to post-Cold War conflicts in an area extending from the South to the East of the Mediterranean, from the Maghreb to the Middle East.

- METHODOLOGY AND SOURCE STUDIES

This module aims to introduce officer cadets to methodologies specific to military history, the history of international relations and geography by confronting them with the study of a diverse range of sources for the medieval, modern and contemporary periods.

3/ INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

- TRANSFORMATION OF ARMED FORCES AND MILITARY POWER

After having set a general framework presenting the concept of internal security and its strategic and political implications, this course explains the challenges of internal security then proposes a study of the management of crises in internal security (principles, organization, retex).

CYBERSPACE AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

This course analyses the modifications brought about by the expansion of Cyberspace in international and transnational political relations, it puts this political space into perspective, analyses the actors and the issues and outlines the contours of an analysis in strategic terms.

4/ WAR STUDIES

- GEOPOLITICS MIDDLE EAST

This seminar focuses on future conflicts in the Middle East. It analyses long-term developments in the region's borders as well as contemporary developments in the region's competing powers.

6/ COMMUNICATION / SOCIOLOGY

- CONFLICT, ARMIES, MEDIA

The purpose of this course is to allow officer cadets to grasp the importance of communication as a security issue. If relations between armies and the media are part of a long history, that communication is now part of the battlefield and permeates all the activities of the military institution, it is also a factor of power for states. This is the case with traditional media soft power but also with the digital revolution which is reconfiguring the international media system and international power relations.

- SOCIOLOGY OF MILITARY ACTION

This course will be taught by 2 teachers. The first part will deal with the characteristics of current missions by analysing the issues relating to the multinational, multifunctional dimensions, real-time media coverage and the issue of stress. The second part will examine military action from the point of view of war and post-conflict. It will address the following themes: the end of the war as an analyser of a temporality and a history of the aftermath of the war; the difficult reconstruction and reconciliation of war-affected territories (beyond the end of hostilities, a tendency to intensify violence, looting, destruction, the weight of community and religious identities as ingredients both for rupture and also for social ties). It will also discuss the challenges of demobilization at the scale of societies and the transition to peace with the economy of recognition and memory.
