Naukowe Koło Lingwistyczne NKL WAT

Language and security in the military context

Date: 25-26 October 2022 (24th October – arrival, 27th October – departure)

Venue: Military University of Technology WAT, Warsaw, Poland

Conference theme and purpose

The theme of the conference is Language and security in the military context and it invites the participants – officer cadets and civilian students, to explore challenges regarding security and language matters. Despite the fact that the language of conference is supposed to be English, the participants are expected to discuss a variety of aspects concerning the language itself. It is widely known that the importance of the language cannot be neglected, as it is the primary means of everyday communication and the common ground for the achievement of the interoperability among our allies. The participants are expected to prepare a 20 min presentation on their experience regarding, for instance, Erasmus exchange, military exercises, involvement in international projects, etc. Through presentations and discussions, we hope to facilitate the exchange of experience as well as offer a possibility to start debates on foreseeable international challenges.

Main focus areas:

- Language in the security context
- Language and cultural awareness
- Language and technology
