Food for thought

- Languages can be more or less gender-neutral;
- Languages evolve and adapt naturally, it should not be necessary to change a language by force;
- Still, languages can be adapted to contexts;
- Languages mirror societies: more than languages, behaviours and mentalities need to adapt to contexts
- Gender filters must be implemented cautiously: it requires good awareness on the topic
- Culture is the root of everything and it must be taken into account when it comes to changing patterns.

Thank you for taking part in this workshop and enjoy the rest of the seminar!
