

In 2015, Romania asked transportation of 10 seriously injured people from Bucharest to United Kingdom and Norway after a horrific nightclub fire in Bucharest.

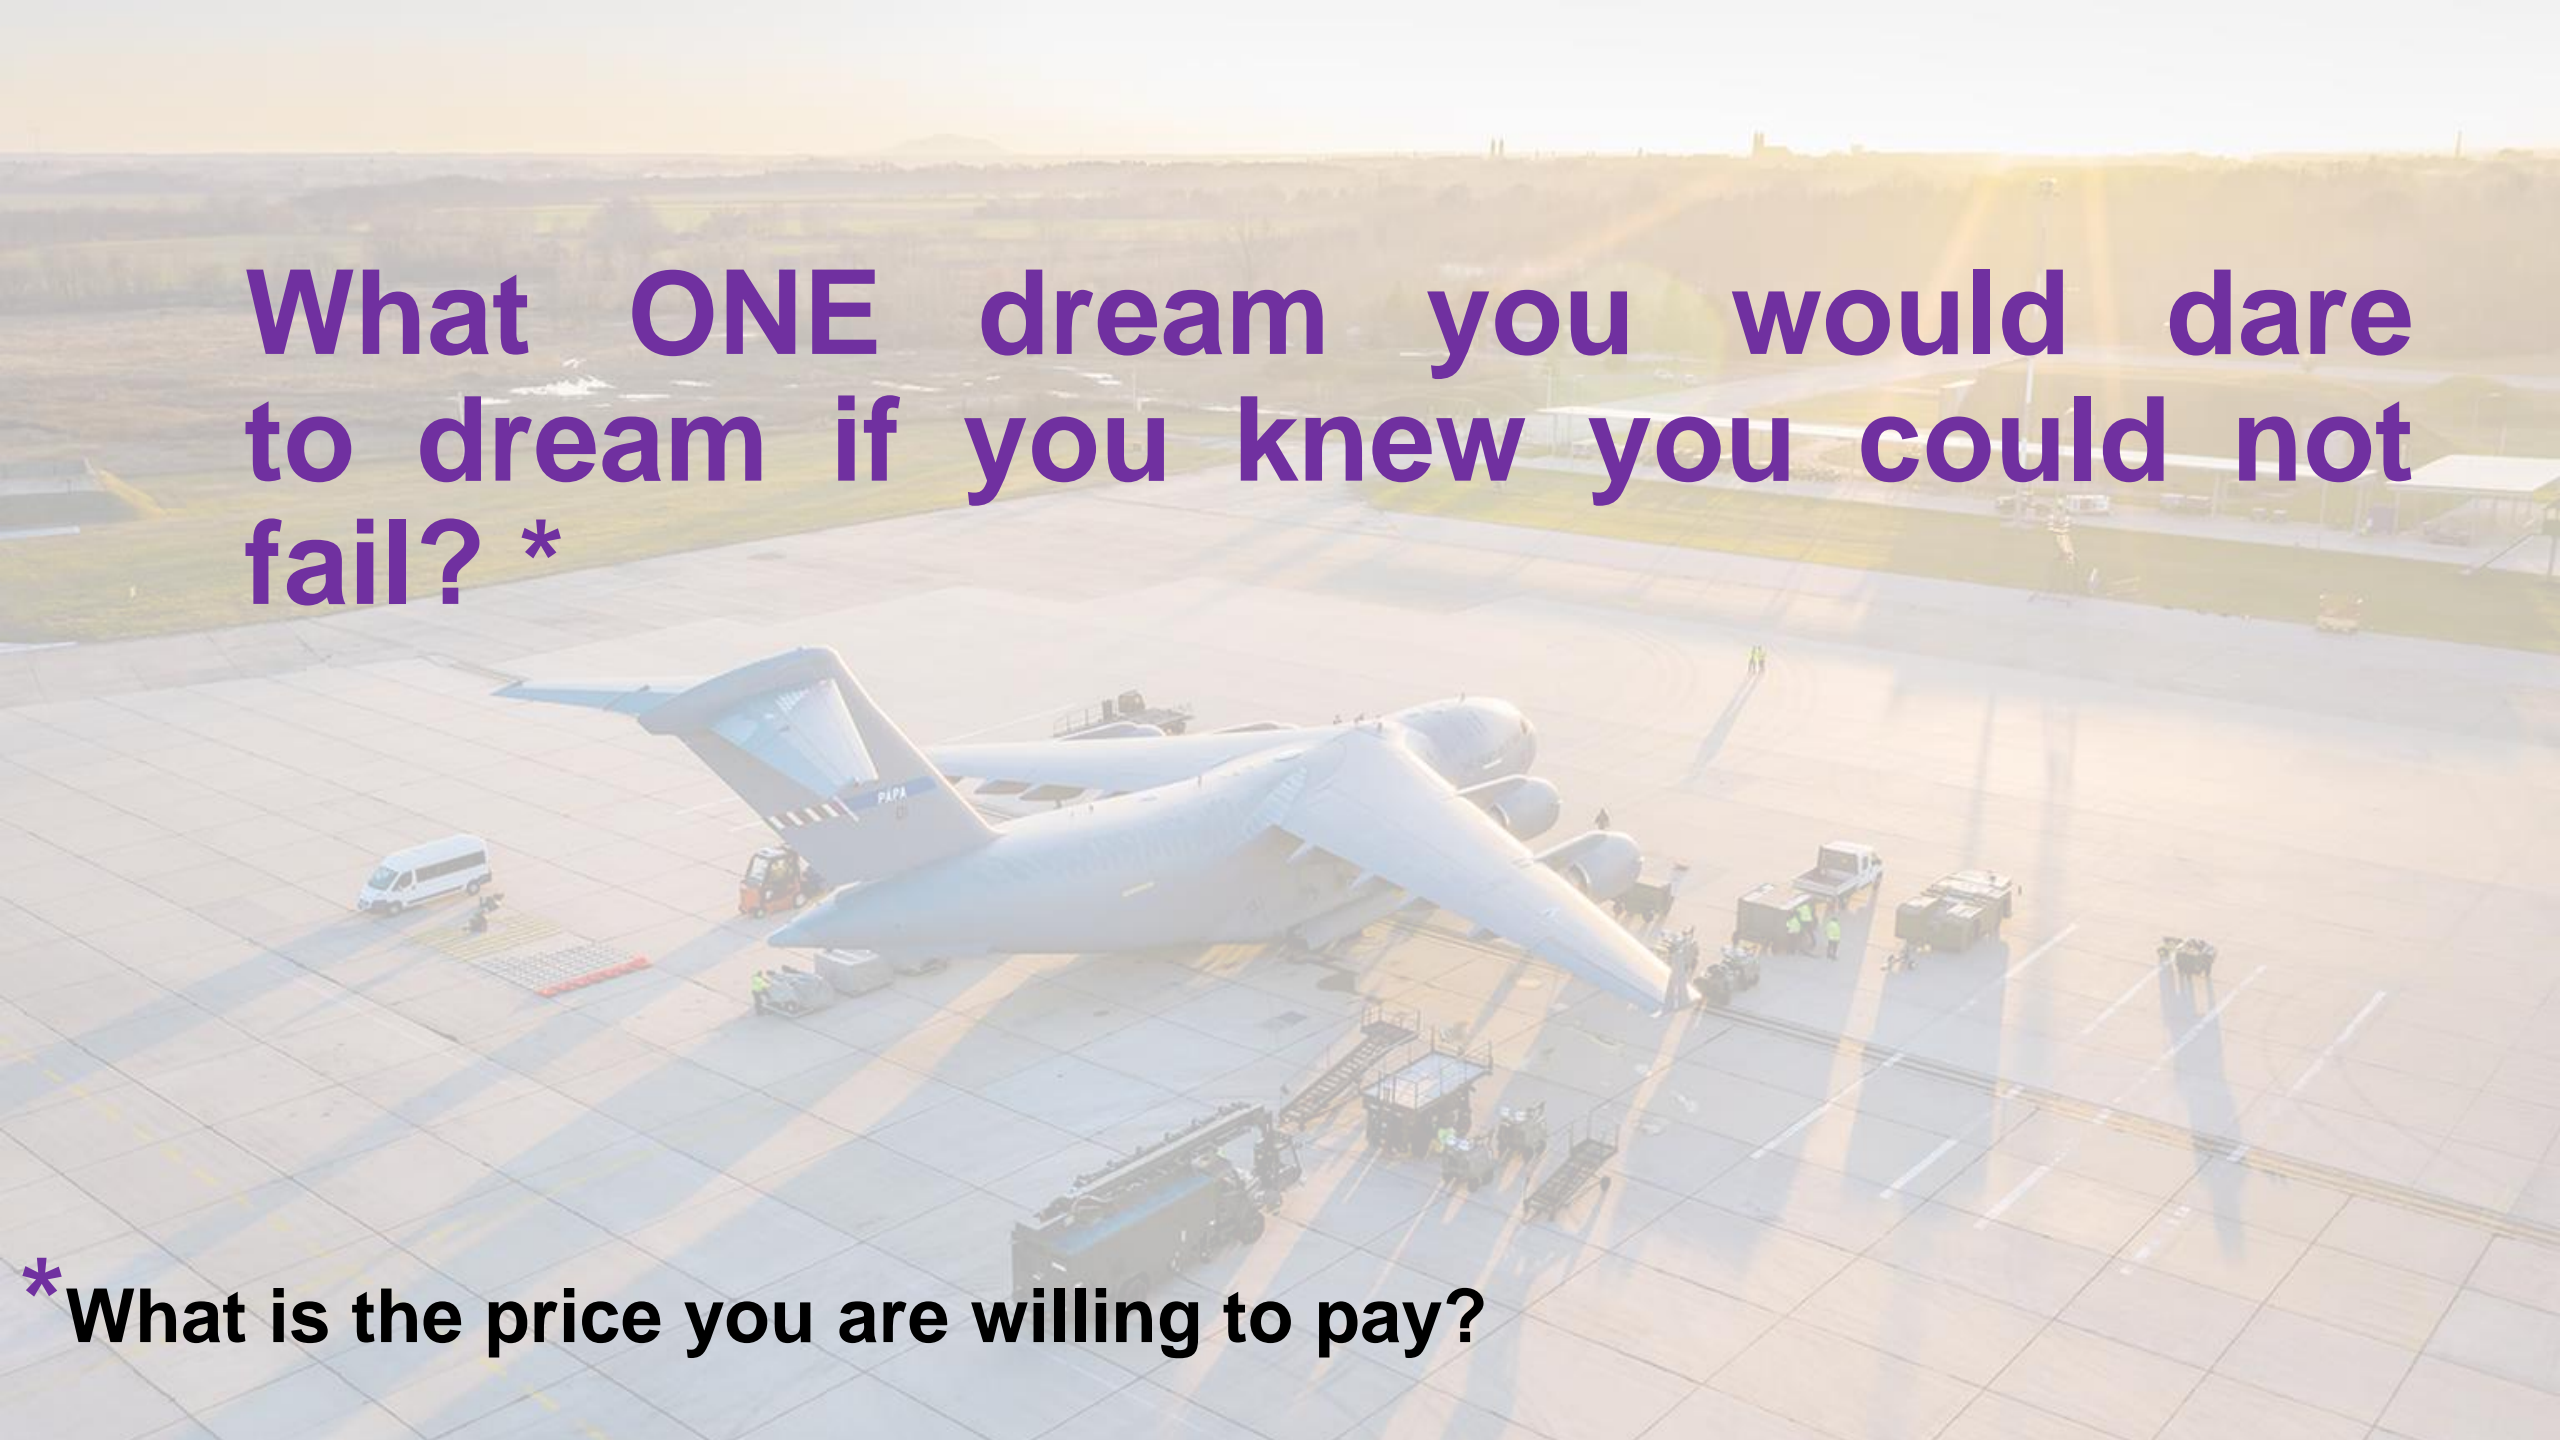

In 2017, The Netherlands requested support for evacuating people from the Caribbean after the devastation of Hurricane Irma.

In 2021, several Member Nations used SAC C-17-s to support the evacuation effort after the Taliban takeover of Kabul, capital of Afghanistan.

In 2020, when civilian and military aviation alike stood at halt due to the outbreak of a pandemic, Romania, Bulgaria, The Netherlands, and Hungary used flight hours to transport medical equipment.

An aerial photograph of an airport tarmac during sunrise. A large white cargo plane is the central focus, with its tail fin featuring the word 'PAPA' in blue. The plane is surrounded by various ground support equipment, including forklifts, a white van, and several workers in high-visibility vests. Long shadows are cast across the tarmac by the low sun. In the background, airport buildings and a distant city skyline are visible under a hazy, golden sky.
