11 Institutions

32 Cadets

Description of Module

The objective

- To understand basic principles of defence energy management with the focus on sustainable energy and to gain basic competences in defence energy assessment, defence energy planning, and energy plans execution.
- Module level – bachelor (level 6 EQF)
- 3 ECTS
- Module design period: June 2024 – April 2025
- Module testing period:
 - May 26 – June 9, 2025 (independent studies),
 - June 10 – June 13, 2025 (lectures and workshops at the MAL)
- Initiating team:
 - Prof. I. Templalexis, Hellenic Air Force Academy, Greece
 - Prof. P. Guillot, French Air Force Academy, France
 - Assoc. Prof. G. Labutis, Military Academy of Lithuania

Lessons learned:

- To follow on the requirements for the target audience (the focus of this Module is on sustainable defence energy management (command and control));
- To expand the time for meetings with subject matter experts from defence energy (from one expert to 2-3 subject matter experts).

Challenges of Module Implementation:

- Non homogeneous group of students:
 - ✓ The variety of study programs: from political and defence studies to technical programs)
 - ✓ The variety of study year from the second year of studies to the fourth year
- Very intense studies during the week of June 9-13, 2025
- Limited time for independent studies during the week June 9-13, 2025.

Conclusions of the Module:

- The module has proven to be valuable and is worth continuing
- Overall feedback was highly positive
- A well-balanced mix of formal and non-formal activities was achieved
- The Academy is currently undergoing changes and improvements in its existing study programs; The future of this module will depend on strategic management decisions, with the potential to be offered as a 5 ECTS elective course at MAL
- The module also has potential for implementation at partner institutions.
