We were divided into multinational teams and given the mission to respond to an emerging crisis in a so-called Gray Zone, located near the borders of Bravo Nation (the team I was a member of). This area was affected by poverty, displacement, and instability — people were lacking basic necessities like shelter, food, and healthcare.

Our job was to look at the situation carefully, understand the risks, and find smart solutions while thinking about politics, people’s needs, and logistics.

This activity made us think beyond what we learn in class and work together under pressure .

A humanitarian crisis is emerging in the Gray Zone along the borders of Bravo Nation, where a segment of the population is living in poor conditions. Lacking basic necessities like shelter, clean water, and healthcare, these people face escalating instability. Urgent action is needed to prevent the situation from worsening.

Teams:

- ❖ Alpha State
- ❖ Bravo State
- ❖ November Council State
- ❖ Industrial Cluster Charlie
- ❖ Industrial Cluster Golf
- ❖ Foxtrot

Highlights

During the Erasmus mobility in Turin, I had the opportunity to explore the city and discover its rich history. At the same time, I experienced Italian culture, traditions, and lifestyle while sharing this journey with my fellow Erasmus colleagues from different countries.

From grand squares and historic palaces to beautiful streets along the Po river, the first capital of Italy offered me a glimpse into its cultural and architectural heritage that makes it truly unique.

Benefits

The benefits of this Erasmus mobility were the development of our critical thinking and problem-solving skills through various activities and collaborative tasks. We learned how to analyze different situations, think more creatively, and work together to find effective solutions. In addition, this experience gave us the opportunity to connect with students from different countries, share ideas and perspectives, and build meaningful international friendships while learning more about other cultures.

Serving as a moderator for the Intercultural Communication and Military Ethics section at the CERC International Conference was a great opportunity for my professional growth. The role helped me improve my public speaking and leadership skills by managing diverse discussions on complex topics.

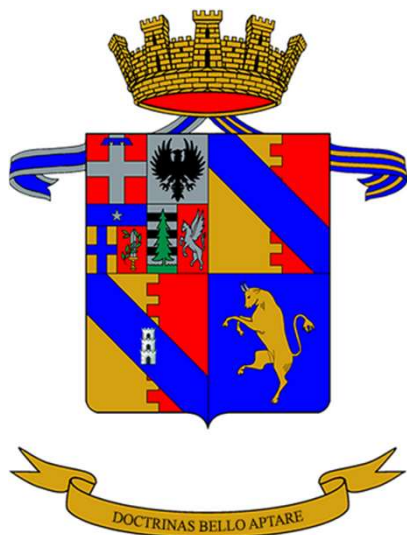

I learned how to guide academic debates effectively, ensuring that different cultural perspectives were respected while keeping the conversation focused. It was a rewarding experience that boosted my confidence in handling high-level international events and expanded my professional network.

Recommendations

I truly recommend experiences like this from the bottom of my heart. Participating in an Erasmus mobility is a wonderful way to learn new things, grow both personally and academically, and experience different cultures. It also offers the chance to travel, meet people from many countries, and build new friendships.

Most importantly, it allows you to live unique moments and create unforgettable experiences and memories.
